

Creativity and the arts play an important role in enhancing the quality of life in San Diego

Join our funding application review panelists pool and contribute to supporting the impact arts and culture organizations have on our communities throughout San Diego!

Are you the right fit?

We are looking for artists, cultural practitioners, and arts field professionals from all disciplines and backgrounds throughout North America and Baja California who have some of the following skills and interests:

- Knowledge of and familiarity with best practices in nonprofit arts and culture sector at a local, national and/or international level
- Expertise in an artistic discipline (theatre, visual arts, music, etc.) as a creator, educator, administrator, or board member
- Experience in the nonprofit sector (board governance, finance, fundraising, marketing, development, strategic planning, operations, etc.)
- Experience with event production such as festivals or parades
- Knowledge in the field of diversity, equity and inclusion
- Desire to enhance the arts and culture landscape of our city to the benefit of its people

How it works

If you are selected to participate on a panel, you will be contacted in January 2022 and required to attend a 2-hour training. Panelists will independently review and rank assigned applications during the month of February 2022 and meet virtually to collaboratively review applications in March 2022. Rankings are then brought before the Commission for Arts and Culture to inform funding recommendations. Panelists receive an honorarium for each day/half-day of the virtual panel convening.

Apply now!

To apply for our panelists pool, please submit your Panelist Application Form through the QR code below. Deadline to apply is Sunday November 21, 2021.

For more information visit <https://www.sandiego.gov/arts-culture/funding>

